"Electioneering by Congressmen Won't Beat 500 Enemy Divisions," captioned Life magazine on its "Newsfronts of the World" page of July 20. Citing Kentucky's Andrew J. May (Dem.) as a shining example of duty-shirking who, as chairman of the House Military Affairs committee, confounded newsmen with the statement that "the war will soon be over, probably this year, certainly in 1943," before deserting Washington for home where he expected to "mend his political fences." Well, if I happened to be one of his constituents which, thank God, I'm not, there wouldn't be enough baling wire in the United States to patch up his sagging pickets. And the same goes for any number of other law-makers who have deserted the nation's capital in its hour of need—so the deserters can make sure of re-election to a job for which so many of them have proven themselves grossly incompetent in the past few years.

The congressional district in which, happily, Santa Clara county lies, is not faced with the disgrace of a homing congressman, intent only upon re-electio, and to heck with everything else. For Congressman Jack Anderson let it be known early in the campaign that he did not expect to be here in person to direct affairs designed to assure his continuance in congress. Although he is now in San Jose (not at his request) for a short time as chairman of the naval affairs committee, investigating naval affairs at the request of the government, during a recess of congress, he is not here to campaign for himself. Wrote Anderson to the Press, a few weeks ago, "There are more important things facing the country than the re-election of a few senators and congressmen, and I believe in being where I can accomplish the most good. I'll appreciate it very much if, through the columns of your paper, you will assure my constituents in your community that I have been, and will continue to do everything in my power to further the successful prosecution of the war, and at the same time look out, to the best of my ability, for the best inerests not only of my own district, but of the entire state of California."

Now, I'd call that well-spoken, indeed. Jack Anderson has been and is one of the finest representatives this district has ever had in congress; he has looked after the home folks, and, if the truth were generally known, has advanced some ideas which, had they been accepted by congress, would see the United States in better shape, insofar as the war is concerned, than it is today.

And, inasmuch as he is not here to campaign for himself, it is up to us to see that he is re-elected for another term. At present, his opposition doesn't appear to be gaining much ground, but that is no reason for his supporters to lay down on the job and, mentally concede his victory. No, the best way to assure ourselves of the services of Jack Anderson in congress is to get out and vote for him at the primaries. Many an election has been lost because of the overconfidence of a given group of voters. And there are those who await just such an opportunity as is now presenting itself to unsheath their knives for a telling blow in the back. Votes will cinch the election; let's see that we get out and deliver them at the primaries — for a man who wasn't afraid to stay in Washington when election time rolls around; a man who feels secure in his record, and who felt that home was no place for a serious congressman in this, his country's hour of peril—Jack Z. Anderson.

Kenneth Dwelley Appointed Key Ag. Teacher

Kenneth Dwelley, has been appointed to the position of key agricultural teacher of Santa Clara county, in place of Ralph Fitzsimmons who has gone into service.

The appointment came from the state department of agricultural education but does not interfere with his present position on the high school faculty.

Fitzimmons, who also taught in Campbell before going to Morgan Hill, was married in Reno to Rose Linton of San Jose, as announced this week.

TRIBUTE TO CAMPBELL

Campbell district for a home,
Is not surpassed on earth,
Here, thru the years we loved to roam
This fertile vale, so richly blest.

God gave us mountains all around,
With trees so thickly covered,
And man he made the fruit abound,
When this prime land he furrowed.

We are thankful that in living,
'Mid scenes and clime superb,
The joys of life to us are given,
Much more than we deserve.

Then Campbell, fair, amid thy bowers,
Where live the friendly folk,
'Mongst whom we spent such pleasant hours,
We'll dwell within thy scope.

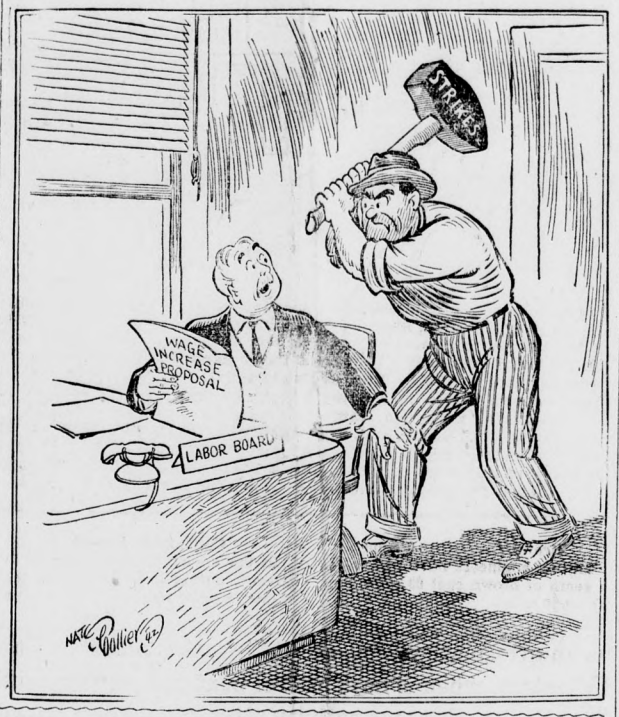
Friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Raffanti on Fourth street Saturday evening to honor Joe Furtado who has been inducted into the army and will leave soon for training.

LOADED LOGIC



Candidate for Re-election

Charles G. Johnson

Basing his candidacy on his thorough knowledge of finance, together with twenty years as State Treasurer, Charles G. Johnson launched his campaign for re-election for that office. Johnson won the Democratic and Republican nominations by one of the largest majorities given any candidate in the last primary election.

"The people of California today and for the next several years are facing serious governmental problems. Most of them are financial and economic in character," said Johnson. "It is therefore essential that the office of State Treasurer be occupied by an official with a thor-knowledge of these financial and economic problems. The State treasury is a constitutional office, important and technical, in which blunders from incompetence can prove very costly. I have served as State Treasurer for the past twenty years, during which time I have earned for the taxpayers more than $25,000,000 in interest on idle state moneys, and it is a matter of record that during my administration, this state has obtained a higher rate of interest on public money deposits than any other state government."

Dim-out on Coast Effective Aug. 20

New "dim-out" regulations have been issued by Lieut.-Gen. J. L. DeWitt for a strip of western Washington, Oregon and California. Many entire counties of California are in the area, Santa Clara among them.

The new order demands complete blackout of all illuminating signs and ornamental lighting which is visible out-of-doors, flood lighting of buildings and signs, interior signs and ornamental lighting immediately within unobscured windows.

Lights must be shielded so as not to be visible above, such as those in service station yards, parking areas, recreation areas and entrances to buildings, traffic signs and signals.

As to outdoor ground areas, the proclamation states that beside top covering no lighting shall exceed "one foot candle at any point."

These orders make impossible any outdoor night ball games and other sports requiring lighted grounds..

Recognizing the impracticability of eliminating all up glare in shipyards and other outdoor war plants during night work, they are to restrict so far as possible the amount of light emmitted upward.

This order becomes effective on August 20.

The necessity of this order arises because of the rosy illumination and overhead glow from brightly lighted cities which can be seen as far as 150 miles at sea and so furnish a guide to enemy submarines or boats.

This is just one more minor thing that the home front can do to help the fighting front.

THE RELUCTANT DRAGON

The traffic cop, by the nature of his job, inspires the hare's fear of the hound, in many of the most lawful motorists. Sight of him sets the driver to wondering apprehensively what one of a thousand laws he may have violated — particularly if the uniformed dragon of the highway so much as glances in his direction. And so a million motorists will wish Traffic Cop Thomas Shrewbridge well in his difficulties on the San Francisco police force; for he was charged last week with refusing to tag people for over-parking, with defying a captain who ordered him to remove the distributor from a car parked by a hydrant, so the owner could be nabbed.

We offer no excuses for Officer Shrewbridge. Probably he was very wrong in what he did—or did not do. But nobody can stop a million motorists from applauding a traffic dragon for being a reluctant dragon.

40-MILE SPEED LAW

The California State Automobile association announced last week that it will advocate action at the next session of the legislature reducing the maximum open highway speed limit to 40 miles per hour for the duration of the war emergency to conserve tires. The present limit is 55 miles per hour.

Twelve states have already reduced speed limits to 40 miles per hour, in response to President Roosevelt's appeal earlier this year to state governments for such action, and such action should be taken in this state.

There is growing support for enactment into law of the voluntary speed limit urged by the Automobile association and other organizations sharing leadership in the statewide motor vehicle conservation campaign, with the slogan, "Keep It Under 40—Drive for Victory."

FIRE, THE SABOTEUR

Neither sabotage nor enemy action accounted for the more than 2000 forest fires which last year swept through California's forests, laying waste to 150,000 acres.

This year increased vigilance and alert safety precautions must be practiced by all visitors, campers and hunters in forest areas. War has added to the possible hazards of sabotage, has reduced the number of men available for fire fighting services. Fire, ever the most treacherous and devastating enemy of our forest lands, constitutes in war time a direct drain on the nation's war resources; not alone in the destructions—and California has 24 million such acres needing protection—but in the accompanying damage it may inflict on such strategic objects as power lines, bridges, and other installations.

Let all tourists, campers and hunters practice safety first!

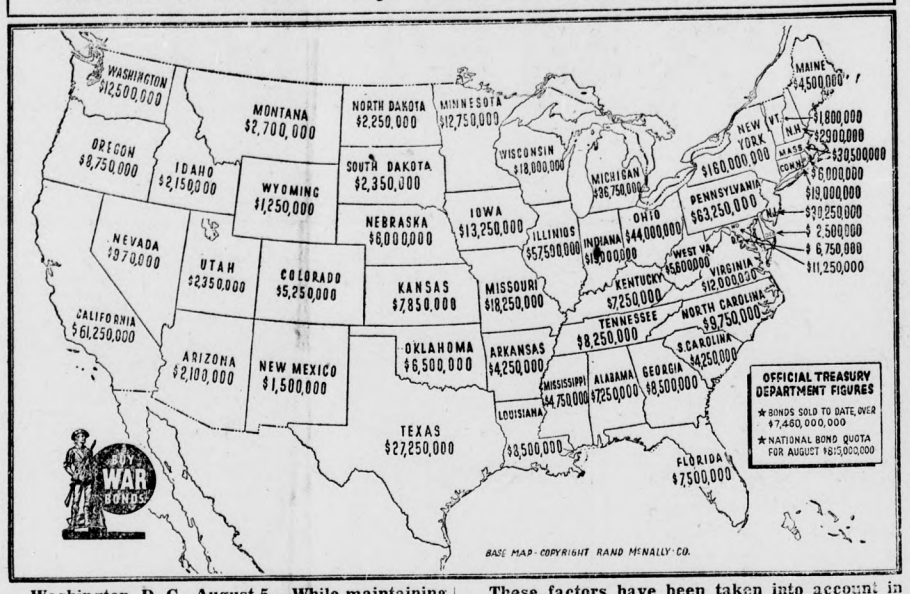
DON'T BE A GOOFER

The great American custom of beating fire engines to the fire must be curbed for the duration.

This was the stern admonition issued today by the State Council of Defense in reminding Californians that they "should stay away from the scene of any unusual military activity." The warning was issued as an aftermath of the recent "invasion scare" in San Francisco, when a navy patrol boat ran aground off Seal Rock and rescue activity attracted a large crowd of curious spectators.

Beating the fire engine to the fire, or having a front line seat at any other accident has long been a traditional American past time and is one tendency which should and must be sidetracked for the duration. "We must remember that during an enemy attack, more curious goofers will be victims of shrapnel and falling debris than will be killed or hurt by enemy bombs or shells. Don't be a goofer," the council warned.

Official U. S. Treasury War Bond Quotas for August



Washington, D. C., August 5.—While maintaining a tentative annual level of twelve billion dollars as its goal, the Treasury Department today fixed the August quota for the sale of War Bonds at $815,000,000 as shown by the accompanying map by states.

In lowering the quota from a billion dollars in July to $815,000,000 in August, the Treasury has given recognition to certain factors which may be expected to result in variations in sales over the 12-month period, such as the seasonal character of farm income.

These factors have been taken into account in determining each state's share for the national quota for August and will be given consideration in fixing quotas for subsequent months.

In addition to the state quotas as set out in the map there is a federal payroll allotment quota of $9,750,000 and territorial quotas as follows: Alaska, $760,000; Canal Zone, $213,000; Hawaii, $1,300,000; Puerto Rico, $440,000, and the Virgin Islands, $17,000.

MY THANKS

Somewhat over fifteen years ago I was appointed Justice of the Peace of Campbell Township, and since then I have been elected to this office three times. It is high time that our community received my thanks.

I have liked this work. And to my surprise I have carried on for over fifteen years without, as far as I know, a single reversal of judgment on appeal.

I thank our community because I have liked the work and because the work, as the record suggests, has seemed to like me.

Your vote on August 25 I shall greatly appreciate.

You Can Help Make Telephone Service Meet Demands of War

By keeping conversations BRIEF.
By being sure of your number before you call.
By using Long Distance for essential messages ONLY.
By using station-to-station service wherever possible for toll calls.

Your cooperation will aid in this national emergency because the demands of war have loaded our long distance lines and many of our local facilities to capacity and beyond.

Materials required to increase circuits and switchboards cannot be obtained—they must go into the making of weapons and munitions. It is not now possible to build more plant.

Therefore, we all are confronted with the necessity of getting the most out of what we have. In following the above suggestions, you can save yourself time and expense and you will help us keep the way clear for War Messages That Must Go Through.

We appreciate your splendid response in helping to meet these problems which involve the safety and security of us all.

THE BOOK MARK

by marty

"The Uninvited" by Dorothy Macardle.

'Tis in England that the scene if this story is placed. And 'tis in England that "The Uninvited" pays a visit to Cliff End. Cliff End is what the house is named to which the "Uninvited" guest makes his call. The title of this book is a warning to the reader—a fair warning to be heeded only by those who care not about haunted houses—ghosts lurking about staircases in the dark of night and stifled moans and sobs that startle one out of a deep sleep. For those of you who revel in eerie, midnight disturbances in tales about a house that has been uninhabited for fifteen years and that is situated on a cliff with a stark, dead and naked tree standing on the edge of the cliff exactly in front of the house, then do not fail to give yourself a precious treat by losing yourself in Dorothy Macardle's very first novel.

Roderick Fitzgerald and his younger sister Pamela, one bright day in the spring, went in search of a house to buy and make their home, and in their wanderings along the cliffs of North Devon they discovered Cliff End. With a quick once-over they immediately concluded that it was their home and after consulting the owner, an old gentleman known as Commander Brooke, who vaguely mentioned "disturbances" the last tenants had experienced, they became owner of Cliff End.

If you want to read the book without being told about mysterious happenings that took place all summer at the Fitzgerald's home on the cliff, then I must stop now because if I say more about the ghosts, etc., the whole story will be spoiled for you. About all that there is left for me to tell you is that you will meet some gracious characters, some pleasant and lovable people. It is filled with people you can't forget: the lovely Stella, living with her grandfather, the Commander; Lizzie, the talkative and highly emotional Irish servant; Dr. Scott, shy; Peter and Wendy, the young actors; Whiskey, the cat; and Mary and Carmel. But the only possible way you will ever understand them all is to read the book.

MAY OCCUPY GOVERNOR'S MANSION

To Californians whose deepest interest lies in their own children, their own homes—the family that occupies the Governor's House at Sacramento is important.

Here is the family of the man that hundreds of thousands of Californians want at the helm of State government during the war crisis and in the troublous post-war days to come. They are: first row—Robert and Nina; second row—Virginia, Dorothy, Earl, Jr.; third row—James. Mrs. Warren and Earl Warren.

Mrs. James A. Kelley of Los Angeles, but for many years a resident of Campbell, spent a day here recently with Mrs. Jessie Campbell. She had also visited her son, Norman and family.

Mr. and Mrs W. H. Stray and Miss Helen Stray returned Friday from an outing in Yosemite. They report a delightful time with wonderful weather.

South Lies East

A good look at the map will reveal the startling fact that almost the entire continent of South America lies east of North America. If you went straight south from New York, you would land in the Pacific ocean just off the west coast of Chile. The westernmost part of South America is almost straight south of the tip of Florida. South America is southeast, not south, of North America.

WAR GASES

By DR. WARD L. MOULD
Medical Gas Officer
U. S. Office of Civilian Defense

(This is the last of a series articles about war gases their characteristics, and measures the civilian can take to protect himself against gas injury)

THE ANTI-GAS ORGANIZATION IN YOUR CITY

The anti-gas organization in your city is divided into two parts. In association with casualty stations and hospitals of Civilian Defense emergency Medical Services, facilities are being developed to remove all traces of "persistent" gases from injured people. This is necessary to prevent the gas being carried into hospitals. The average person can "decontaminate" himself, as described in a previous article. Special hospital and decontamination facilities should be reserved for those who have other injuries as well. Personnel to man these stations are now being trained.

The "persistent" gases may remain in an area for days or weeks. To meet this danger, decontamination squads have been organized in Departments of Public Works. These squads are equipped with street flushing machines and brooms and special spraying apparatus. They are furnished with special chemicals which can be used to destroy the "contaminating" gases.

The senior gas officer in your community will be responsible for identification of war gases, marking off the gassed area, for technical advice on the work of decontamination squads, and the handling of food, water or clothing which may have been contaminated. He must have trained assistants for these tasks.

REMEMBER, in case of gas attack:

Keep calm. Keep cool. Walk—do not run to shelter. Keep this series of articles where you can find them.

No Effect on Real Estate

The people of Los Angeles don't feel it, but actually they're rising and falling as if on a giant teeter-totter, Dr. U. S. Grant and W. E. Sheppard, geologists, reported after a study of southern California earth movements. The experts said the movement was so faint that it would have no effect on real estate values.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

The United Nations, to win the initiative in the war must soon open a second front and there are increasing indications that the occupation of Europe by Allied troops is one of the ultimate objectives of such a campaign.

The military aspects of the titanic undertaking must be left to military experts. But there are economic and production problems ahead, that will come in the wake of that battle for victory, which American agriculture must play a large part in solving.

When the United Nations have freed other nations now enslaved by Nazi Germany; when Japan collapses, and China is free from blockade—when that time comes, America again will be called upon to assume the tremendous job of feeding most of the civilized world. There will be immediate and urgent need for food and other supplies in the liberated nations so that their man-power can take part in the final, devastating knockout blows against Hitler and Hirohito. There will be critical and immedate need,too, so that millions now facing starvation may be saved.

What part can American farm surpluses, accumulated during the long years of depression, play in meeting that problem?

U. S. Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, who is close to the farm problems of the middle west urged weeks and months ago that the WPB not only allow materials for storage facilities to be allocated to the wheat belt, but also that the board should insist that the lumber and nails be allocated for storage construction for the huge wheat surpluses. "The regulations were modified," he reports, "but, I am much afraid, too little and too late."

Senator Capper believes, however, that other steps still can be taken to insure the utilization of wheat which is now surplus, but which will be desperately needed when America must undertake the job of feeding most of continental Europe.

He comments:

"It seems pitiful to think that millions of bushels of good wheat are going to rot on the ground in states in the wheat belt this year, because of lack of storage space. During coming months this wheat is going to be surplus, unmarketable for human consumption. And without adequate storage facilities millions of bushels will go to waste, unless we can find other uses for this wheat.

"There are two ways in which this wheat can be used to advantage, instead of being allowed to go to waste. One is through feeding it to animals. Under present conditions, Britain cannot use wheat from the United States because of the Canadian situation. Canada has two or three years' supply of expoit wheat; in the United States, we have between two and three years' supply of wheat for domestic consumption. That is, if wheat is to be used only for milling into flour and by-products of flour milling.

"But if that wheat is turned into pork and chickens and eggs, then it becomes available to meet the rapidly increasing demands for meat and poultry products both at home and abroad. Any program that will divert tens of millions, or a hundred million or so, bushels of wheat into feeding channels, should be put into effect immediately."

The other possible outlet for surplus wheat, Capper declares, is its development and use for industrial purposes.

"The base of many products used in industry," he continues, "is industrial alcohol. We have even learned, in the past few months, that the Russians have been making rubber from grain alcohol for nearly a quarter of a century. The easiest and most practical way to make alcohol is from grains. Also, of course it can be made from cane molasses, but that is out for the duration of the war. Sugar is rationed. Wheat is surplus. It is only sensible, then, to make alcohol from wheat."

This is only one aspect of a big problem; there are other surplus commodities besides wheat, many of them in California. But it is at least encouraging that a thought is being given now, before it is too late, to salvaging current surpluses for the day not far distant when we will undoubtedly be confronted with drastic shortages.

Radio

The Weather bureau says that radio waves do not affect the weather, and statements that have appeared from time to time that the tremendous outpouring of radio waves all over the world has caused bad weather are without scientific basis. In comparison with the tremendous amount of energy broadcast continually into the atmosphere as a result of thunderstorms, the amount added from the radio stations all over the world is comparatively minute.

An electric fan does not cool a room but it does cool the skin of a person by evaporating the moisture arising from the body which has a cooling effect.

Our Farmers Fight the War with ELECTRIC POWER

THERE'S AN ARMY in California that never smells the smoke of battle, yet is waging a determined offensive to help win the war. It is our battalions of farmers, marshalled in every fertile valley, producing food stores by the shipload for the sustenance of our armed forces and those of the United Nations. The farm troops fight with modern weapons, chief of which is Electric Power. California's agriculturists lead those of all other states in the United States in their employment of Electricity for bigger and better crops.

In the 46 counties into which P. G. & E. lines extend, there are 77,181 farms within one-quarter mile of an electric distribution line. Of this total, 95.9% have electric service for the lighting of buildings and operation of a legion of time and labor saving machines and appliances.

Better than nine out of every ten farms in the territory we serve are increasing their production of vegetables, fruits, grains, poultry and livestock, with the aid of tireless and efficient electrical helpers. This means much in this day when every able bodied man is needed for military service or industrial labor.

For many years this Company has been building its agricultural service—extending lines, improving service, reducing rates, making available to every rural district the advantages of Electricity for farm operation.

The war emergency now finds Agriculture here fully equipped electrically to provide record breaking supplies of victory foods.
